GET CONNECTED & DO BUSINESS

access | voice | profile

As the oldest and largest chamber of commerce in Ireland, we represent the business interests of 1,400 companies across the Greater Dublin Area, making us the perfect partner to help your business grow. Providing a blend of networking, support services and access to Government we aim to increase the prosperity of Dublin and our members. The Dublin Chamber of Commerce is the city's most powerful and enthusiastic advocate, playing a role in major developments affecting Dublin city and its environs.

corporate membership

The Dublin Chamber of Commerce acts as a strong and independent voice for all sectors of Dublin business and we would encourage you to lend your support and initiative to the chamber programme. Priority issues include transport and infrastructure, waste management and business costs to name but a few. If Dublin is to take its place among the leading capital cities around the world, we must all participate: the government, the business community and the people of Dublin.

Corporate membership of the Dublin Chamber is for your business if you are a large indigenous or global business based in the Dublin region.

Membership of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce provides you with access both to members and to decision makers in Government. Access to fellow members is facilitated by our many events, by the membership directory and through our publications. Access to key decision makers is facilitated through involvement with our policy committees and working groups and also through our special events.

Our Dinner in Camera event series has a long history with the Chamber and is a small gathering of Corporate CEO's drawn from indigenous and multi-national companies in the Greater Dublin Area. Our guest of honour makes a short address and takes key questions from the audience. It is a very friendly but prestigious dinner event and has been addressed in the past by Glenda Miller, eBay & PayPal; European Union Commissioner Charlie McCreevey; Tánaiste Mary Harney, TD; Joe Macri, Microsoft; Micheál Martin, TD and Jim O'Hara, Intel.

The Chamber acts as an independent voice for business in Dublin city and its environs. We support your business by lobbying Government to ensure Dublin has the best environment to conduct business.

Through the work of our committees and working groups, we address issues such as transport and infrastructure, waste management, business costs, tourism and inward investment and help you to engage with Government on the many issues that affect how you do business.

profile

The Dublin Chamber of Commerce can provide you with unique sponsorship and marketing opportunities. This enables you to enhance your business profile by taking advantage of one of our exclusive sponsorship packages. You can launch your new product, new company name or premises to a target audience of business people through the Chamber events programme.

testimonials

"We are proud to support the Dublin Chamber of Commerce. Our membership is very important to HP in both establishing and fostering effective relations within the extended Dublin business community, as well as making sure that our voice is heard on issues that impact the evolution of the city, issues that really matter to our employees and customers."

Martin Murphy, Managing Director, Hewlett-Packard

"AIB is a proud member of Dublin Chamber of Commerce. Our involvement and our networking with Chamber members provides us with a real feel on the issues and opportunities facing our business customers. Our sponsorship of the Annual Dinner is our token way of just saying thanks."

John Kelly, Head of Business Banking, AIB Bank
